BRITISH MUSLIM HERITAGE CENTRE

Community Organisation

A Beacon of Heritage, Learning, and Community in Manchester

The British Muslim Heritage Centre stands as one of Manchester's most vibrant cultural and educational institutions. Based in the heart of Whalley Range, the Centre is housed in a magnificent Grade II* listed building dating back to the 1840s — a striking landmark that now serves as a welcoming space for people of all faiths and backgrounds.

At its core, the Centre is dedicated to celebrating Islamic heritage, uplifting the Muslim community, and fostering meaningful dialogue across society. Its vision is clear: to be a centre of excellence for learning, development, and community engagement.

Delivering over 40 programmes each year, the Centre brings together education, culture, wellbeing, youth development, and interfaith outreach. Its Heritage Academy supports more than 60 children aged six to twelve with high-quality Islamic and Qur'anic studies, while its respected Hifdh programme helps boys and men memorise the Qur'an with deep understanding and discipline.

Adults benefit from weekly tafsīr classes, Arabic language courses, and tailored support for new Muslims. Women's coffee mornings and regular health checks place community wellbeing at the heart of the Centre's work.

Young people are a particular focus, with sports sessions including football, badminton, and boxing that build confidence, teamwork, and resilience.

The Centre is also widely recognised for its interfaith and public outreach. Schools, universities, faith groups, and civic organisations visit regularly for tours, workshops, and exhibitions. Highlights such as the Kiswa & Islamic Treasures Exhibition and the acclaimed House of Wisdom offer a powerful window into the heritage, creativity, and global contributions of Muslim civilisation.

More than a historic building, the British Muslim Heritage Centre is a living, breathing home of opportunity — a place where heritage is honoured, community is nurtured, and bridges are built for a better, more connected future.
